3 Political career

3.1. Offices held in a political party or national trade union

Date	Office
1996 to present	She joined the Italian Communist Refoundation Party (PRC) and has been involved in movements as a feminist and communist activist ever since. Some of her notable actions have included supporting the ‘movement of movements’ in Genoa, attending social forums, occupying the roofs of the Sapienza university against the Gelmini reforms, taking to the streets for women’s marches, and collecting signatures to promote the minimum wage and defend the constitution.

3.8. Offices held in the EU institutions

Date Office

2014 to present

Since 2014, as a member of the European Parliament in the group GUE/NGL, she has continued her activism, working to give a voice to movements and unite various struggles throughout Europe and Italy: against job insecurity, for a European minimum wage, for women's self-determination, in the NO TAP and NO TAV movements, against repression and for prisoners' rights.

EN

International solidarity has taken her to Palestine, Frankfurt to protest against the ECB, the Donbass, Hamburg to protest against the G20, and to Ankara to support Kurdish political prisoners. As a member of the European Parliament's Committee on International Trade, she has mainly worked to oppose free trade agreements between the EU, USA and Canada, such as TTIP and CETA, and was also the Rapporteur of a Report on human rights and international trade. She is striving to give a voice to the new southern question involving the whole of southern Europe, and to fight against the Fiscal Compact and the neo-liberal treaties which have taken power away from the people of Europe.
